The day trip to the silver circle in Iceland:

On the Silver Circle tour you will see Deildartunguhver, Krauma and much more plus. The Silver Circle tour will take place around Borgarfjörður. For what not to join this Thule Travel guided tour and get the experience Icelandic essential when visiting places off the beaten path that are exceptional, not only the natural beauty but also the importance historical? Your Silver Circle adventure begins in Reykjavik, where you'll be picked up by the Mariana and they will take you to visit the hot springs highlands of Europe in Deildartunguhver. A natural beauty, the water from the Deildartunguhvers hot springs it is also channeled to the cities of Borganes and Akranes for its heating.

In addition, and not far from here, we will visit the natural hot springs of Krauma.

In fact, you can relax and experience nature from your core bar'londose in the geothermal bariums here (the entrance fee is included in the price of the Silver Circle tour). the hot water here it originates from the most powerful thermal spring in Europe in Deildartunguhver, our first point of reference. Curiously, to achieve the perfect barium temperature, the hot water here is mixed with cold water from Iceland's smallest glacier, which call Ok.

Then we will visit the often described Hraunfossar waterfalls and wide and soft. Although it is not big or powerful, neither narrow nor tall, the drop is unusual because it is actually made of thousands of falls that flow from the solidified lava and run like small waterfalls and rapids towards the Hvítá River.

The next stop on the Silver Circle tour is Barnafoss waterfall. This is another Icelandic gem, which is not far away (near Halunfossar). Here, the color of the water can be fascinating. The name Barnafoss translates as "Nirl Falls" and, according to legend, Barnafoss used to have a natural arch. The arch was destroyed for the mother of two children who fell from the arch to their death.

The last stop on the Silver Circle tour will be in Reykholt. At one time, this was one of Iceland's intellectual centers for many years, one of the most important schools in the country. The poet and politician Snorri Sturluson lived in Reykholt during the Middle Ages. Half. Records of the Old Norse Language and the Mythology of the Iceland Medieval by Snorri Sturluson are invaluable to scholars modern. Here you can see the remains of his farm and a barium with the pot, Snorri 's Pot" and you can still visit a tunnel between the barium and the House.
